

Windana and TaskForce have merged.

Information for clients about our single organisation, and how together we can provide more services to more people, now and into the future.

“We’re delighted to share that Windana and TaskForce merged on Monday 20 November 2023. As a single organisation, we will work to provide more life-changing services to more people - with clients and communities at the heart of all we do.”

Andrea McLeod, Windana and TaskForce CEO

Good news for clients and the community

By becoming one organisation we’ve brought all our staff, knowledge and resources together.

This means current clients, future clients and the community will begin to benefit from:

- More service availability - We’re working to make sure more people can use Windana and TaskForce’s existing services
- Better wraparound care - Clients will have more access to the diverse services we offer as part of their journey
- Improved quality - We’re becoming more efficient behind the scenes - allowing us to focus more on the services we deliver to clients
- New services - We’re now also better positioned to work on offering more services, in more places, across Victoria.

A note on client information

As a merged organisation, from 20 November all client information will be held by Windana. We will continue to manage client information in line with the relevant laws, legislation and best practice.

Services will continue running smoothly for our clients

Since we merged, all of Windana and TaskForce’s services are continuing at the same locations. The same people are also still delivering services to you.

For the time being, we’re also keeping both of our organisations’ separate names, websites, phone numbers and social media accounts. However, we’ve made a change to the TaskForce logo to show that TaskForce is now a part of Windana.

For more information about Windana and TaskForce as a merged organisation, visit either of our websites.

We thank our clients and the community for the support and encouragement we have received as we embark on this new era as a single organisation.
